The mission of the Kenora and Area Palliative Care Committee is to educate and support the dying and their caregivers/loved ones and to support the compassionate efforts of all who strive to improve their quality of life and to maintain their dignity.

What is Palliative Care?

A Guide for Patients, Families, and Caregivers.

Palliative care is specialized support for people living with a serious or life-limiting illness. Its purpose is simple: to help you live as comfortably and fully as possible, at every stage of your illness. It focuses on improving quality of life — your physical comfort, emotional and spiritual well-being, and the things that matter most to you and your family.

Palliative Care Is About Living Well.

Palliative care is not only for the end of life. It begins at the time of diagnosis, and continues throughout the trajectory of your illness — even while you are receiving treatments like chemotherapy, dialysis, or surgery. Many people receive palliative care for months or years. It's about helping you feel better, stay informed, and make choices that feel right for you.

What Palliative Care Helps With.

- Comfort and symptom management – Relief from pain, shortness of breath, fatigue, nausea, and other symptoms.
- Emotional and spiritual support – A safe place to talk about worries, hopes, and questions.
- Information and planning – Help understanding your illness, making decisions, and preparing for what may come next.
- Support for families and caregivers – Guidance, reassurance, and resources for the people caring for you.
- Respecting your wishes – Ensuring your care matches your goals, values, culture, and traditions.

Who Provides Palliative Care?

Palliative care can be provided by many kinds of professionals working together: nurses, doctors, nurse practitioners, personal support workers, social workers, spiritual care providers, Elders or Knowledge Keepers, counsellors, volunteers, occupational therapists, physiotherapists, pharmacists and more. Care can happen at home, in hospital, in a clinic, in long-term care, or in a hospice.

You can receive palliative care at the same time as your regular treatments. It does not replace your medical team; it adds a layer of support to your care.

Palliative Care Is About You.

Above all, palliative care is centered on what matters most — your comfort, your choices, and your quality of life. It is care focused on living well, with dignity and support, for you and the people you love.

Did you know?

Palliative care is not just for patients living with a cancer diagnosis.

Other life-limiting illnesses may include:

- Congestive Obstructive Pulmonary Disorder (COPD)
- Heart disease
- HIV/AIDS
- Cystic Fibrosis
- Kidney disease
- Liver disease
- Dementia
- Muscular Dystrophy
- Multiple Sclerosis (MS)
- Parkinsons
- Alzheimer's disease
- Amyotrophic Lateral Sclerosis (ALS)

Advance Care Planning

What is Advance Care Planning?

Advance Care Planning (ACP) is the process of thinking about what matters most to you in your life and what that means for your health and personal care. ACP helps you share your wishes and preferences with the people who are important to you. When everyone knows your wishes and preferences, they can help make sure you get the care you want.

When someone makes their wishes and preferences known, they are exercising their right to make a choice. Everyone is entitled to the “presumption of capacity” – this means you are considered to have the ability to make decisions about your care, unless there are reasons to believe otherwise. It means that you are able to understand the impacts of a decision about your healthcare.

Knowing and expressing your wishes and preferences will look different for each person. You may also find your wishes and preferences change based on different situations. This guide will help you explore and identify your wishes and preferences and then share them with the right people so that you get the care you want.

Advance care planning (ACP) is part of life planning. Life planning involves financial planning, legal planning, health and social services, and community networks. ACP is an important step in taking control of your healthcare journey.

Advance Care Planning helps you to:

- Think about what is important to you
- Learn about the care you want
- Choose substitute decision makers that you trust
- Share your wishes and preferences so the right people know what you want
- Record your preferences and substitute decision maker(s)

Advance Care Planning Ontario is an initiative of Hospice Palliative Care Ontario (HPCO). HPCO is a registered charity that strives for a future where every person in Ontario has access to quality hospice palliative care, including advance care planning. HPCO is not a government or crown agency.

Advance Care Planning Ontario has developed “Advance Care Planning Workbook,” a simple but comprehensive way to plan your care. You can find it at advancecareplanningontario.ca or using this QR code.

MAID Resources

Living with a life limiting chronic illness can affect every aspect of a person's life, including their physical health, emotional wellbeing, independence, and relationships.

As symptoms progress, individuals may be faced with making difficult decisions about the types of care and support they receive.

These discussions and decisions may include ongoing medical treatment options, making an illness roadmap to organize counselling and supportive services or choosing end of life care focused on comfort, dignity and quality of life.

If an individual reaches a point of intolerable suffering caused by a serious and incurable condition, they can contact their primary care provider for information about Medical Assistance in Dying (MAID). MAID is a legally available option for eligible adults.

Each person's illness journey is deeply personal and having access to information can help individuals make informed choices that align with their values, wishes and beliefs.

Should you be looking for more information on MAID, please see the resources below:

Canadian Virtual Hospice has published a comprehensive resource available online, "Understanding Medical Assistance in Dying (MAiD)."

This document outlines information about MAID in Canada and provides answers to some common questions. It is intended to help people understand MAiD and navigate the processes involved. Use the QR code to find the document, or visit their website at www.virtualhospice.ca.
